When developing my narrative for this weeks assessment I wanted to tell a simple story that shows off my main strong points and favourites parts of my observational sketches I drew, characters. So for my narrative, I came up with this idea of 'love at first site'. Using my observational sketch of a woman analysing a book while a man is sketching in the background, this being Act 1 of the story.

Developing my narrative further I drew them colliding into one another, this playing into the conflict part of my story, Act 2. Finally them looking up at each other with a slightly surprised faces, with a hint of endearment for who the other person may be. Like it was love at first site. This being the 3rd Act of my narrative and dissolving the conflict created.
